STATE NEWS

Androscoggin.

The case to the government of the part of the City Building occupied by the Lewiston post office has not yet been completed.

Travel over the horse railroad during July is so far much larger than it was last year. The increase has been great in the past two years.

Forty guests are now stopping at the Mansion House Poland Springs. It is expected that the house will be filled by next Wednesday. A large party of guests arrived at the Poland Spring House Friday evening.

The 4th of July is likely to be rather quiet in Lewiston. No method of observance of the day has been mentioned by the city government. Several excursions will leave the city for Parks Island, Old Orchard, etc.

The large bay horse owned by I. O. Fossett, slipped from in front of Dr. Phillips' shop in Auburn, Saturday afternoon, and in his flight around the corner near the Park House he threw the carriage. The shaft penetrating his forehead, inflicted a severe wound. The horse was secured. The carriage was badly damaged.

Four ladies rode from Livermore to North Auburn on Monday in a stage line, Sat and a morning whose ages were respectively seventy five, seventy six, seventy eight and eighty. They made a jolly party in the drive. Enough remarks that there were no kissing games.

The Lewiston Machine Company has just received the contract for one hundred and twenty Mill Locks for the Manchester Mills in Manchester, N. H. The Machine Company is now shipping the first hundred locks of the same concern. The building of the locks will take about three months.

Last Sunday morning, Mrs. Lilla Coburn of Auburn died very suddenly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Orrin Hutchins, in Greene. Mrs. Coburn left her home in Auburn on Saturday, June 20th for the purpose of visiting friends in Greene. Sunday morning she arose early and took a long walk, appearing in the best of health. Soon after breakfast she complained of a pain about her heart, and fell, expiring almost instantly. A doctor was called, who pronounced the cause heart disease. She was seventy-one years of age.

Cumberland

Michael Cordey's two years old child was struck by a team on Pleasant street, Portland, Saturday, and a bad gash was cut in its head.

It was reported, Saturday, that the body of a man, wrapped in an old overcoat, was found floating adrift to the anchor of a Boston vessel lying in Portland harbor.

Mr. D. C. Hatch's coat logged with his pocket picked in Portland, Saturday, of his purse which contained a check for $70 on the Maine National bank which had been stopped.

Edwin Russell Morse, editor of the Bloomington Leader, author of the prize story in the Chicago Tribune of last Saturday. Mr. Morse was formerly connected with the Portland Advertiser and Sunday News.

A crowbar named Wordsworth was robbed on Portland street Friday night, by two boys, one of whom held his hands while the other searched his pockets. The young highwaymen got away with twenty cents.

Four pocket books wrapped up together were found back of a Portland store, Friday. One had belonged to Mr. Nowheglin, of Bridgton, one to Mr. Bean, of Hiram, both of whom pocketbooks had money, keys and other papers in them. The other two were empty.

Major W. W. Waterman, of the Fourth Michigan Cavalry, was one of the men who captured Jeff. Davis. He is editor and part proprietor of the Jackson Patriot, and was one of the delegates to the Encampment.

George O. Fellows, son of Rev. F. E. Fellows formerly pastor of the Congregational church in Kennebunk and Bridgton, has just been awarded the first Winthrop prize of $200 in Yale College, "for the most thorough acquaintance with the Greek and Latin poets."

Henry Smith of Portland, and John Olsson, of Sweden, belonging to the fishing schooner A. O. Smith, were lost, Thursday, in the fog off Mt. Desert, while setting trawls. They were afterwards spoken by the schooner Sarah Louise, who gave them a compass and provisions, and they rowed to Portland, forty-five miles, reaching here at midnight, Friday.

Kennebec.

A male patient escaped from the Insane Hospital, Augusta, Sunday afternoon. He carried a box of musical instruments.

Augustus Gove persistently maintains that he did not take Mr. Quimby's wallet. His mother and uncle have been to visit him and he tells them the same story. Detectives true has become connected with the case.

Mr. Wm. Cheney, of East Pittston, cut a bad gash in the top of his foot, last week, while falling trees. He was obliged to walk about one-half a mile before the wound could be dressed. The loss of blood was so weakening that he fainted several times.

At the time of the arrest of Gustavus Gove in Whitefield, on Thursday night, by City Marshal Morse and Mr. George Moore, for the Hotel North robbery, all the missing articles were given into the possession of Mr. Moore, who put the jewelry in his vest pocket. He soon after discovered that the diamond pin was missing. After a thorough search, the pin was found in the sand, Sunday.

Lincoln.

The small post-office at East Bowdoinham was entered by burglars, Friday night. Fourteen dollars worth of stamped envelopes were carried off.

Lowell Frank, while engaged in grinding axes, at the north end mill, Bath, Monday, received a painful wound, his hand coming in contact with the grindstone and the flesh of the left thumb being ground to the bone.

Somerset.

Chester S. Moody, of St. Albans, was driving on Mill street, one day last week, and in attempting to pass a rapid gait a horse team, the carriage upset, throwing Mr. Moody against a pile of boards, injuring him badly. Two ribs were broken, and internal injuries will prove fatal. Charles Bonney was riding with Mr. Moody and was slightly injured.

Bears are quite troublesome in the vicinity of Highland Plantation. E. I. Lane caught one in a trap, a heavy clog being attached. The bear dragged trap and clog some three-quarters of a mile through the woods, when it caught in a large tree. In trying to get away, Mr. Bruin gnawed off a four inch poplar. Another man discovered a bear near his sheep, and going up near him fired at him, when the bear bounded towards the man. The man struck the bear with the breech of his gun breaking the bear's nose. They had quite a hand to hand tussle, which ended in the man cutting the bear's throat with a jack knife.

A singular incident took place during the severe wind of Sunday night at Cornish Bassett Mills, in North Anson. About two o'clock Mr. Alonzo Cleveland, who has charge of the mills, was suddenly aroused by a heavy jar and crash followed by a continuous noise like the whirling of machinery in motion. He immediately arose and dressed himself and started in the direction of the noise, discovering that the wind had blown down several large timbers in Hunker's bark mill (a building situated between the grist and saw mills) and one of the timbers striking the shaft that raised the gate, had set the machinery in motion. Mr. Cleveland went after help and succeeded in removing the obstacle without doing any damage to the machinery.

New Portland lumbermen have been to Dead River to investigate the ravages of the fire. They found the following township badly burned: Chain Ponds, Kibby, Big Pond, Alder Stream, West Forks, Langtown, Coplintown No. 11 and King and Bartlett. Standing on Big Pond and looking northeast, nothing could be seen for twelve or fifteen miles but the devastating effects of the fire. The rain that fell last Monday checked the fire for a couple of days, but it is well under way again moving easterly towards Dead River lumber. Unless a rain to extinguish it falls soon it will go through that great timber country to Moosehead River. Some of the townships are burned all over entirely ruined. This in connection with the fire near the Forks a few weeks ago almost ruins the timber on Dead River.

Waldo.

Belfast has subscribed $2,000 to complete its soldiers monument fund.

John O. Bagley, of Troy, has recently received about $100 back pension.

Wednesday morning, James Cuttle of Monroe, committed suicide by hanging. He was sixty-five years of age. He was taken from a wagon some time ago and has been demented ever since. He twice before attempted suicide but was prevented.

Saturday, the 20th inst. Master Ralph Coombs, little five year old son of Capt. Charles Coombs of Lincolnville, fell through a hole in the steamboat wharf a distance of some twelve feet to the water below and would have drowned had it not been for the quick action of Mr. Wm. Drinkwater, who quickly sprang into the water after him and succeeded in keeping him above water by clinging to a spile in the wharf until help came to their rescue.

Washington.

Pembroke is now enjoying an interesting epidemic of civil service reform. The Portland Standard.

The organization of the Aroostook Sardine Exchange was completed, Wednesday afternoon, at the Passamaquoddy House, Eastport, says the Standard. Robert Green was elected President, William O. Grady, Vice-President, Fred A. Holmes, Secretary, Geo. W. Cupp, Treasurer. The Exchange decided that the price to be paid for herrings during the month of July, should be the same as that paid in June, viz. $4 per hogshead at the weirs and $5 when delivered at the factory. A committee was appointed to investigate an alleged sale of sardines below the price agreed upon.

York.

Almon Skillings of Hiddeford has obtained a back pension of about $1,500, and a current pension at $8 a month.

Mr. Lewis Harris an old and respected citizen of Bangor died at his residence, Thursday afternoon. Cause heart disease.

Last week Marston Mines, and his sister Miss Sutton of Parsonsfield were thrown from their carriage, their horse taking fright from a white horse getting up from beside the road. They were not hurt badly, but no bones broken.

The work of putting down seventy two miles to the yard rails on the Boston & Maine railroad, instead of sixty pounds to the yard, between Wells and West Biddeford, has begun, and about a mile been laid, the distance now to be relaid is five miles where there are two heavy grades, the work will be complete as soon as possible.

One night last week burglars entered the jewelry store of Edward Bowen, at Alfred, and carried off about $100 worth of jewelry. The burglars first went to the blacksmith shop of Frank Knightly, and after breaking open the shop and procuring what tools they wanted, went to Bowen's store and effected an entrance and blew open the safe, stealing many valuable pieces of jewelry. As yet there is no clue to the perpetrators.

Frank Bennett, a small boy living in Biddeford, went to Ferry Beach on Wednesday, to attend the picnic of St. John's society. He stood on the forward platform of the first car of the train on the Old Orchard Beach railroad that conveyed the picnic party from Ferry Beach to Old Orchard station, his head came in contact with a switch, and he was thrown from the train and his head struck a rail. He received a slight cut near the right ear. When he went off the platform half a dozen men in the car thrust their heads out to watch him, and were caught by a second switch and more or less injured. E. A. Goshen received a slight blow on the back of his head, G. Parant received a cut two inches long on the back of his head, Joseph Lavigne was cut on the head and received other injuries of a serious nature. F. Bergeron received greater injuries than any of the others. The back of his head was deeply cut four inches in length, and he was otherwise injured. The Lavigne boy is said to be suffering severely from the injuries inflicted.

Fighting over the Offices

DEMOCRATIC DISSENSIONS — DISCORD GROWING OUT OF THE SPOILS

[Washington Correspondence of the New York Tribune.]

That the Democrats in the Senate should quarrel as soon as there was some patronage in sight seemed natural enough. It was not supposed, however, that they would fall foul of each other as soon as they did. When the Republican party was in power there was no sight more touching to behold than the amity in which the Democratic brethren in the Senate dwelt together. A common misfortune bound them together. They presented a resigned but united front. Little interest they took in the nominations which the President might send to them. The names were those of Republicans. Here and there a Democrat would slip in as a personal favor, perhaps, to this or that Senator. But such instances were rare, and the fortunate Senator who would secure at intervals such appointment did not receive enough favors of this character to excite the envy of the Democratic colleagues. This has all changed now. The nominees are Democrats and there is a fierce struggle on the part of Democratic Senators to demonstrate to the satisfaction of their constituencies, which of them has the greatest influence with the President and can secure the greatest number of offices. Friendships of long standing are threatened, dissensions are rife, and jealousy and mistrust are stalking about where nobody would suspect it.

Take the case, for instance, of the Florida Senators. They were friends before March 4. They watch each others movements with suspicion now. Heretofore there existed between them a friendly rivalry only as to which of them should be considered the greater constitutional lawyer. It has been changed into a struggle almost for political existence. Jones's term will expire in 1887. The Legislature elected this fall will choose his successor. His most dangerous rival will be ex-Governor Bloxham. To get the latter out of the way he had his appointed Minister to Belgium. Bloxham, however saw through Jones' game, and refused the mission. Bloxham is encouraged in his course by Senator Call, who hopes to appear in the Senate to great advantage with Bloxham as his colleague than with Jones, with whom he has disliked the honor of being the greater couple of the body. The two Congressmen from Florida have taken up the quarrel of the Senators. Davidson siding with Jones and Dougherty with Call. They have abused each other by telegraph until the White House until the President declares that all hopes of settling the difficulty have been left to the parties to look after his fences. It is said he has not required anything by writing. Meanwhile the State of Florida has to do without any of the pap the Senators are fighting so fiercely distributed among the faithful.

It was the last case Senator Matthews should not and he better. Old Senator Harris never forgives the President and Jackson, his colleague, for the appointment of Assistant Secretary of State Porter. Harris and Jackson have not since that appointment was made. Harris will hem in sulks and will not apply my inquiry. The President, if he thinks it worth his while to administer salve to his wounded feelings in the shape of some minor offices. He absolutely ignored Harris and Harris blamed Jackson for his ill success with the Administration. When the two meet in December there will be some coldness noticeable in their intercourse. With each other.

In Georgia Senator Brown resigns so soon. He is 65 years. His colleague, Gordon, has been in the Senate now for twenty two years and thinks it is time he should have a voice in the matter of appointments. Brown, in his patriarchal way frowns upon all such attempts on the part of Colquitt to become a rival in public affairs. Colquitt, Senator Brown, that fearful little Brownie creature. There may be some lively times next winter when Colquitt attempts to run for himself.

Between Vest and Cockrell, of Missouri love is lost. Vest has just been re-elected and in the matter of patronage he is absolutely his own master. Cockrell, perhaps, is not yet so secure in his appointments than his colleague. Trouble in their ranks is to be played to the advantage of with Missourians by the time that President Cleveland is stalking Lorenzo Bryant. That drip increased his prestige among his constituents and will probably be remembered by the Secretary of State. Cockrell in some substantial appointment of Cockrell never admired Bryant greatly and he was one of the Democratic Senators who refused to let Bryant be a candidate for the Presidency when the signatures of Senators to a paper to be presented to the convention were solicited by the friends of the Democratic statesman. Cockrell, too, is hardly disliked by Vest in his opinion. Vest is more liberal with the people's money and frequently falls foul of his colleague with the Holman fight. Senator Jones in the matter of appointments and influence with the present Administration. Vest appears to be slightly the.

In Georgia Alabama, there are signs of coldness between Morgan and Pugh. The latter arrived in town the other day and secured the appointment of William Dorsey as United States District Attorney in Alabama. Dorsey is a brother-in-law of Pugh, and Colgate's wife is a cousin of Morgan. Why Pugh should have selected as his first victim a man related by marriage to his colleague seems strange and can hardly be accounted for except on the ground that the two are on friendly terms. And this in reality is the case. Morgan is a great diplomat. He is fond of making long speeches. Why, said one of his admirers, just from the Senate, the other day, "the Governor is the finest talker in the world. He can talk for four hours and on the same subject, too. Pugh, the reverse. He is jolly and long gabbed. He never rises to address the Senate. He is jealous of Morgan's talents. The Record will be entertained and see his speeches to admiring constituents which he (Pugh) can do without overhearing himself. The two men are really quite near in disposition and tastes. They never agree on the very questions. It would be strange if they were to act harmoniously in the matter of appointment.

The feud existing between Senator Ingalls and Senator Plumb is notorious. There is no love lost between the Senators from Illinois. Ingalls has secured every appointment in his State. Plumb has gone to Europe. The leaders of his friends have been in Washington for the last ten days to push their claims for recognition at the hands of the Administration. They have had no success so far. The President seems to have taken offence into his confidence and to look to him entirely for advice in the matter of distributing the Federal patronage. The attitude of the two Louisiana Senators towards Cleveland will be watched with a good deal of interest next winter. That they will settle or get entirely their differences is not now improbable.

These are a few of the points in the sources of dissensions which have sprung up among the Senators on the Democratic side of the Chamber since the Administration came into power. As the question of the distribution of patronage adjusts itself more and more into the foreground they will deepen and multiply.

Disgusting Boorishness

[From the Bangor Commercial, June 30.]

We are requested to inquire of the editor of The Whig whether General Fairchild, the "gallant western soldier" who has been visiting this city for a few days, was not "removed" from the Spanish mission by President Garfield in order to make a place for ex-Vice President Hannibal Hamlin, and if so to inquire also whether the editor of The Whig emitted a plaintive howl upon that occasion over the removal of a "Union veteran" to make room for a "veteran" politician. An early response is respectfully solicited.

The foregoing, which appeared as the leading editorial in Mr Bass's paper last evening, is certainly one of the most astonishing exhibitions of hopeless boorishness that could be conceived. The distinguished gentleman referred to came to this city as the guest of his friend, our most eminent fellow-citizen Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, and on Monday was entertained as the guest of the Cleveland Club of this city, of which Mr. Hamlin is the President and yet almost before that guest had left the city, Mr. Bass is guilty of the act of inviting him conspicuously in his paper by dragging his name into a political controversy, and by reflections upon his honored host, the President of the Club. A more shameful violation of the rites of hospitality has hardly been shown, and the citizens of Bangor in justice to the gentleman in which Mr. Bass discredits the courtesies extended to a distinguished visitor from a distant state.

Aside from the ill breeding of the reference to General Fairchild and the slur at Mr Hamlin, see politician there is no excuse for putting a change of Ministers at a foreign court, which has always been understood to be the prerogative of a new administration, in connection with the removal of postal clerks who have been publicly secured by the Postmaster General that so long as faithful and efficient they would not be disturbed.

But in this case the ignorance of Mr Bass shines as conspicuously as his disgrace of propriety and we reply to his very pointed inquiry that General Fairchild was not removed from the Spanish Mission, but was relieved at his own request. The announcement of Mr Hamlin's appointment which was one of the best and recognized executive acts of the most grateful acts of the Unmitated President Garfield came by Associated Press on the same day with the news of the assassination's numerous shot, and read as follows

WASHINGTON, July 2, 1881. The President yesterday made the following appointments: Hannibal Hamlin, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Spain, in place of Lucius Fairchild, who asks to be relieved.

To anything else on this fact that the ex-Minister Fairchild was here as the guest of his successor ex-Minister Hamlin, would have sufficed to indicate that neither of them felt any sense of having been wronged by the other, but Mr Bass is nothing if not extraordinary, and he probably thought it enterprising and smart to bring the name of a distinguished visitor into reference of the dismissal of a loyal soldier from a clerkship to give force to one of his own improprieties.

That the person who would so exhibit his boorishness in print should proceed by such evasive disguisement of Mr Blaine as follows in the same column, so directly in keeping with that of course is beneath the contempt of all decent people of any kind of politics.

The President is reported as being very much disappointed at the cool reception given his New York appointments.

In one week First Assistant Postmaster General Hay removed 940 fourth class postmasters. It must be remembered that Mr Hay is a very slow man which fact will account for his remarkably weak record in filling the office.

The Commercial is unable to defend the Postmaster General's shameful treatment of the postal clerks all of whom have been assured that they were in no danger of removal providing they were efficient in their charge of their duties, and admits that a good soldier and valuable clerk has been dismissed for no other reason than to make room for one of his own employes. Such changes as these show that Mr Vilas' pretended regard for the welfare of the service sinks into insignificance when compared with his party zeal.

The Portland Argus complains because the Republican papers speak of Collector Hedden as "Boss Thompson's man." We believe the Boston Globe is usually regarded as pretty good Democratic authority, and as it has repeatedly asserted that Hedden was Thompson's man, and that Thompson's recommendation would have more weight with the President than the indorsement of a score of business men, we fail to see what the Argus expects to gain by its criticism of the Republican papers for accepting the truth of the statements in the Globe and New York Sun.

The editor of the Minneapolis Tribune claims to upset the pet theories of his father, the Magwump editor of the Boston Herald. Just now the Herald is denouncing the Ohio Republicans in particular and the party in general for what it is pleased to term the revival of the bloody shirt issue. Fortunately for the political peace of the family, however, the son differs from his paternal parent and disposes of the absurdity of the Magwumps in the following terse paragraph: "The man who is doing most to keep the bloody shirt issue alive in this country is President Cleveland by the appointments which he is making."

The Democrats naturally are opposed to the revival of the rebel issue in politics, says the Philadelphia Press, and they claim most vigorously against the Ohio platform as trying of issues that they would like to have both dead and forgotten. There are few people who would not like to see such issues dead, though all cannot obliterate them from memory. The Republican party did not originate, but met, the rebel issue when it was inaugurated by Democrats a quarter of a century ago. They do not now seek its revival, but when it is thrust upon their attention by the very next Democratic Administration in the superior recognition given to those who excited and actively participated in the rebellion, they cannot plead blindness of vision. It is the Democratic Administration that is forcing the rebel issue again into the political arena.

In view of the fact that the President appointed Collector Hedden upon the recommendations of Hubert O. Thompson, it is very amusing to read in the Washington correspondence of the Boston Post, that the "President has given another evidence that he intends to stand by his pledges" and that "he intends that the federal offices shall not be used in politics." The Post's correspondent takes the chromo.

Secretary Manning has removed Mr Burchard, Director of the Mint, he having declined to resign, and in all probability the matter will be carefully examined when the Senate convenes. The law under which Mr Burchard was appointed provides that the Director of the Mint "shall hold his office for the term of five years unless sooner removed by the President upon reasons to be communicated by him to the Senate." Mr Burchard was appointed first in 1879 and reappointed in 1884 so that his term does not expire until 1889. He has made an excellent officer and has not taken any active part in politics. In creating the office of Director of the Mint the design of Congress was to make it thoroughly non-partisan. The term was fixed at five years in order to make it different from the ordinary political term. President Grant made the first appointment, and he entirely non-partisan was the place regarded that he chose for the same Dr Linderman a Democrat, who had been Superintendent at the Philadelphia Mint, and was especially fitted for the office. It was solely because of this fitness that he was selected and though a Democrat he continued his office under two Republican administrations until he died, and Mr Burchard was appointed to succeed him.

Ex-Secretary Bruewer in speaking of the course of the present Administration said: "I think we have had quite enough cant and hypocrisy in politics. The present Administration is making a great show of reform and economy, and claims credit for being disinterested right enough. Now I know enough about the government work generally in the various departments to be satisfied that there is not an excess of employes, charges to the contrary notwithstanding. I know particularly from my own bureau that there may be more persons than actually needed, but instead of the reduction of government employes it has been one of the requirements of the service in places of those people being discharged and to be filled when Congress meets. It will have before and of course the new appointees will be Democrats. So in some of the civil service is being gradually purged, but very slowly indeed. This charge was expected, but it was believed that it would be done early and fairly. Why don't they discharge the persons whom they disapprove of that they want their places for Democrats? That would be the manly way. But no, they sneak under the bushes of economy and retrenchment. I don't care if they discharge every Republican office holder if they do it because of their Republicanism, but to pretend to uphold civil service reform and then find it necessary to reform only Republicans out of office, which does not redound to the credit of the Democratic party, and they will find that out when they come before the country again."

The Custom House Changes

[New York Tribune.]

President Cleveland has done many things during his short term of office which merit severe censure, but none which thought to be more sharply rebuked than the removal of Collector for the Port of New York. In no other instance has he used the public service more openly to repay obligations incurred in a Presidential candidate. The fulsome endeavor to make it appear that Mr Edward F. Hedden was chosen by a business man is an insult to the old business men of New York. It is also an insult to every citizen of either party who cares for ability and integrity in the public service, and that responsible and important position should be filled by a man known only as the tool of Hubert O. Thompson and the father-in-law of one of his associates in the $9000 scandals.

It would have been much more to the credit of the President if he had openly appointed Edward Hedden, instead of an unknown man, recommended by Thompson solely because of the latter's ability to control the patronage. The people have had enough of Thompson and his deals in the past and present administration of the Public Works Department. If this kind of reckless, extravagant and scandalous administration is to be carried into the Custom House, it will be a very sad thing for the interests of New York. It is hardly possible that Mr Thompson may be disappointed in his aim, but should that prove true no blame will be due to the President. So far as Mr Cleveland is concerned he has appointed Mr Hedden collector simply because that gentleman is Thompson's choice, and because the President was indebted to this agency above all others for his nomination at Chicago.

If the President had any real desire to serve the cause of reform he would have named Mr Burt or Mr Jackson collector. But he is now a faithful office holder in the middle of his term without any reason, in order to make a place for Mr Burt with the plain purpose of withdrawing attention from the other two appointments. Mr Burt was a good office holder before, and no doubt will prove equally acceptable in the future. But he is no improvement on General Graham who is removed in the middle of his term. As to the change in the Surveyor's office, it is impossible to assign other than political reasons for it. Surveyor Beardsley after thirty-five years experience in the Customs service, is removed before the expiration of his term to make a place for the Secretary of the County Democratic organization, a person now serving as Deputy County Clerk through the influence of Hubert O. Thompson. After the outcry public sentiment has been put to in other directions to reward political workers there will not be any disappointment over these changes. But it is time that an end was made to the cant about reform.

[New York World.]

Politically, Mr Hedden's appointment is more doubtful expediency. It is assumed that the new Collector has always been a Democrat, that in the divisions that have occurred in the party in this city he has identified himself with the Democracy, and that his appointment was made in the interest of the reunion of Democrats. But his name has not been in the mouth of the Democratic masses, either as an efficient organizer, an effective worker at the polls or a popular speaker. No one in the party will regard the services Collector Hedden has rendered in winning the victory which gives the important office to him now to fill into Democratic hands.

The new appointment will be received with entire satisfaction by the Mugwump supporters of President Cleveland. If they strengthen the Democracy in the State it will not be because of any enthusiasm they excite in the ranks of the party.

[New York Sun, Dem.]

We tender our congratulations to the Hon Hubert O. Thompson. Under all names, he was yesterday appointed by the President to control the New York Custom House. He fulfils the Jeffersonian requisites, he is capable, he is honest, he is faithful to the Constitution. Yet we would rather have seen him appointed to his own name.

[Philadelphia Press.]

If Mr Cleveland imagined that by choosing an unknown man for Collector of New York he could please all factions in the Democratic party and satisfy his Mugwump supporters, he will find that he miscalculated. As it is, he appears to have satisfied nobody. The Democratic workers are displeased because Mr. Hedden is unknown to them, while the fact that his strongest backer was Hubert O. Thompson renders him distasteful to the respectable element in the Democracy and doubly unpalatable to the Mugwumps. The opposition of the last mentioned faction to the appointment is pronounced, and their disappointment is not mitigated by the sop thrown to them in the shape of Mr Burt's nomination to the Naval Office. The appointments illustrate very aptly, however, Mr Cleveland's methods. He desires to favor civil service reform just enough to gratify the Mugwumps, but not enough to hurt the Democratic party, and, as usual, in trying to sit on two stools, he finds himself between the ground.

Capture of Hostiles in Utah

The following telegram from Captain Crawford has been received at the War Department: Camped the 20th instant near Hussards and was informed that Indians had been seen the same day near Oputo. Discovered a trail the 22d near there, leading to Bonigon Mountains, northeast of here. Chalio, with scouts left to overtake and capture the hostiles. He found the Ranchero next day about 9 o'clock and attacked the hostiles who fled. Pursuit was slow owing to the rough country. Eight bucks, 3 boys and three women, 25 women and children were captured, also five horses of the Fourth Cavalry, three saddle horses, revolvers, belts and ammunition.

One Indian was killed and several wounded. Two captives were wounded and one White Mountain scout was shot through the elbow. The camp attacked was that of Chihuchun. His entire family are among the captives. Other Indians are supposed to be on the northeastern slope of the Sierra Madre Mountains. I will continue on the trail of Nachez to-morrow. On the 19th one scout was killed and another was wounded, fifteen miles southwest of Oputo, by an American named Woodford, who mistook the Indians for hostiles. Nothing has yet been heard from Elliot Gatewood.

The Public Debt—Decrease During the Year $65 000 000

It is estimated that there has been a decrease of about $60 500,000 in the public debt during June. This will make the total reduction for the year ended to-day, about $65,000,000. The reduction during the previous year was $101,000,000. The expenditures during the month, ended to-day, were about $310,000 000 and the receipts about $321,000,000, or about $2,500,000 less than the estimates.

General Burdette Arrives in Washington

He was met at the depot by various posts of the G. A. R. of this city and escorted through the principal streets with fireworks and music to Masonic Hall, where a reception was given him by his comrades of the Department of the Potomac, at which speeches were made by a number of Grand Army men.

THE OAR.

Preparations for the Inter-Collegiate Regatta

WORCESTER, Mass., June 30. Brown University crew arrived at Lake Quinsigamond this forenoon, accompanied by Frank G. Holmes, of Pawtucket, their trainer, and L. D. Lindsey, a substitute, completing the quota of crews for the inter collegiate regatta, July 4th. They are quartered with Cornell and Bowdoin at the Erie Hotel, and the University of Pennsylvania crew at the Waldo House, up town. Olmstead, of the Cornell, is troubled with sleeplessness caused by a felon on his thumb, but has not given up work in the boat, though under the doctor's care.

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, June 30. A. J. Dumont, late Naval Officer of this Port, and Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, blew his brains out to-day at his home in Algiers. Family trouble is said to have been the cause.

GENERAL GRANT.

His Weakness and Lassitude the Effect of the the Constant Progress of His Disease.

MOUNT MCGREGOR, N. Y., June 30. Dr. Douglas, being asked this morning to review the fortnight that Gen. Grant has passed upon the mountain, said: "His life has been prolonged by the invigorating air here. The disease has progressed in a natural way. As I have said before his condition is one of increasing debility. The General was likely to die at any time in New York and had he remained there he would in all probability have expired before this. His present weakness is the natural result of the disease. He is each day less strong and though the step from day to day is scarcely perceptible the aggregate of fourteen days becomes noticeable. No one can tell when the end will come. He grows weaker and weaker and at the last point exhaustion will be reached. This is all and nobody can say when that shall be.

Referring to the local conditions, Dr. Douglas said the mouth and throat are unusually clear because of quiet and close attention during the two days past, but when this is said it must be remembered that the tongue is so swollen as to render articulation difficult and a thorough examination impossible. The loss of voice is due partly to inflamation of the vocal chords and partly to flassitude and laxation of the parts. The glandular swelling is decreased but when the hand is pressed over the neck the cancerous knottings of the glands are found to be not abated but becoming harder constantly. The weakness of the patient now is evident in the lack of ability and desire to walk as he did ten days ago.

There is indisposition on the General's part to economize his strength and there is a lessened interest in his literary work.

A Fairly Good Night.

The Doctor reports this morning that the General had a fairly good night and gained considerable sleep.

Soon this morning, the air being raw and chilly, and fires blaze in the cottage and at the hotel.

Gen. Grant remained in his room this forenoon and at one o'clock his physicians said he had passed a very good night, sleeping and resting without pain.

A Very Quiet Day

Gen. Grant's day has been a quiet one. The afternoon was passed in his room. This afternoon Dr. Douglas told Gen. Grant of the comparative estimate of his strength which had been sent out during the morning in three dispatches, to which the General assented in the following note which he handed to Dr. Douglas:

"The atmosphere here enables me to live in quiting active comfort while I am being treated of which nature is using the course with my disease. I have no idea that I should have been able to come here now if I remained in the city. It is doubtful indeed, whether I would have been alive now. I would be much better able to go back than to come at the time I did."

(Signed) U. S. GRANT.

June 30, 1885.

A Comfortable Night Predicted

At 9 15 Dr. Douglas had composed his patient for the night. The doctor believed the indications for a comfortable night were as strong as last night. Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) arrived at the cottage this evening.

General Grant Thinks that the General Can Live but a Few Days!

WASHINGTON, June 30. Gen. Dent, Grant's brother in law, said to-day: "I think Gen. Grant will not live many days. To-day I received information that the cancer has commenced to infiame the jugular vein and death is but a question of a few days in the opinion of his physicians."

NEW YORK

Mrs Dudley's Trial Concluded—Acquitted Because of Insanity

NEW YORK, June 30. The court room where Mrs. Emilie A. Scott Dudley is being tried for assault on O'Donovan Rossa was again crowded to excess to-day. Dr. Charles H. Dunbar, who defended Rossa, was called to the witness stand. This ended the case for the prosecution. The counsel for Mrs. Dudley then opened for the defense. He claimed that Mrs. Dudley had assaulted Rossa, not out of personal spite or to avenge a personal wrong, but because he was carrying off her country. In outlining the line of testimony for the defense the counsel spoke of what he termed Mrs. Dudley's physical infirmity. He said he would show that for several years her mind has been afflicted by epileptic fits and that she was not, in fact responsible for her actions.

Dr. A. E. MacDonald, superintendent of the Asylum for the Insane on Ward's Island, testified that he was convinced that Mrs. Dudley was suffering from chronic mania. Mrs. Dudley hid held the belief that they were three men she was determined to punish with death and Rossa was the first on her list. Mrs. Dudley then interrupted the proceedings by addressing Judge Gildersleeve, she said: "Whether I was insane or not when I shot Rossa I am perfectly sane now and wish to testify. If the case goes to the jury now without their hearing me they will form an erroneous impression of my motives and I know why I shot Rossa."

It was decided to allow Mrs. Dudley to testify and accordingly she was sworn in and took the stand. She said:

"Gentlemen of the jury—I may be may not be insane. I wish you to decide my case by acquitting me, on the ground that my action was justifiable, or convict me. I was in doubt whether Jeremiah O'Donovan, Patrick Ford or Mesgroll were the more responsible. I read O'Donovan's and Ford's papers and read about Mesgroll and then I went to see O'Donovan. We had a talk about the wholesale murder of innocent women and children. He said that blowing up buildings was perfectly right. 'What,' said he, 'are the lives of a few women and children compared with the holy cause of Ireland?'

He said in regard to the recent explosion: 'We did it,' and he also said, 'I intend to blow up the House of Parliament when it next convenes.' I believe now, however, that he was lying. He said also that he intended to blow up English vessels and that that was strike terror to English hearts. He was a murderer. He had shown himself to be one. If I am homicidal it is quite that I never shot any one before. I have carried a pistol and had it loaded since I was sixteen years old. At that age I was living in the country and there was a great scare about mad dogs, so that everybody, men and women, who were capable of carrying revolvers, did so. I gave O'Donovan as fair a trial as a prisoner ever had in your court. I shot him and I am willing to take the consequences.

Even in this land of liberty I don't think a man like him should be permitted to go about advising murder. I did not come here to shoot him. I am a good nurse and am willing to take my position."

The jury were only in consultation five minutes when they rendered a verdict of acquittal because of insanity. A motion was made to send her to an asylum, which her counsel opposed. The latter asked that his client be permitted to return to her native country and be placed in an institution there. The court will listen to an argument of this motion on Thursday.

The City Chamberlain of Troy.

TROY, June 30. Judge Westbrook to-day handed down a decision denying the application of John F. Bridgeman for an order directing Benjamin H. Hall to turn over to Bridgeman the books and papers of the Chamberlain's office. The decision is on the ground that it is not a clear case of obstinate and willful refusal, such as is contemplated by the statute, and that as the case is a grave one, involving the title to the office, it should be determined by other proceedings.

Failures for the Past Six Months.

The mercantile failures for the six months ending to-day are reported by R. G. Dunn & Co., as 9,004 in number, as against 5,510 for the first six months of 1884, an increase of 494 failures. THE RAGING ATTITUDE OF THE CHEYENNES

Excitement at Fever Heat in Indian Territory

WICHITA, Kas., June 30. Excitement is still at fever heat at Red and Dull ground in Indian Territory and the attitude of the Cheyennes is very threatening. The Sioux in the vicinity of Sparkills in which it is asserted that the Indians will make a desperate fight if asked to surrender their arms, which could only have been successfully done under President Arthur's order. Few Indians are to be seen about the post, the warriors all being gathered at a point twelve miles in the North Fork. A friendly Arapahoe brings in news that three white freighters were murdered near Cantonment by the Cheyenne Indians. Cantonment is sixty miles up river and is perfectly helpless if an attack is made. The Indians are all superbly mounted and armed to the teeth with the best arms manufactured and have a full supply of ammunition.

Wednesday of next week the First Methodist Society will go down the river and Thursday, July 9th, is the day selected by the Unitarians for their annual trip.

THE FOURTH AT ORONO. Our corresponding (H. E. V.) writes: A number of the citizens of Orono wishing to observe the coming Fourth of July in a becoming manner assembled at Hodgkins Rooms, Monday evening. Those present decided that it was rather late in the day for any elaborate programme, but it is generally understood that the following will be the order: Ringing bells at 4 A. M., fantastic marching of Home Fire Company, 9 A. M., with dinner at noon, bathing and rowing contests on the Stillwater river, also foot and wheelbarrow races in the afternoon. All to close with a grand ball for the benefit of the Orono Cornet Band in the evening.

A PLEASANT WEDDING. Mr. Fred B. Cutler of this city, and Miss Evelyn M. Trafton, daughter of Upton Trafton, Esq., of Frankfort, were united in marriage at the residence of the latter gentleman yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a large number of the friends of the bride and bridegroom. Mr. Cutler is the son of Hon. J. L. Cutler and is very popular in young man's Bangor society and Miss Trafton is a young lady well known here and greatly esteemed by all of her numerous acquaintances. About forty of the friends of the bride and bridegroom from this city went down to Frankfort on the special car Howell to attend the wedding. In the face of so many young people being present the occasion was unusually pleasant and cheerful. After the ceremony the bridal pair with their parents, the officiating clergyman, and a few invited friends partook of a wedding dinner. The presents given the bride were numerous and elegant, but no special display of them was made. Mr. and Mrs. Cutler will reside here for the present at the residence of the late Hon. John E. Godfrey on Kenduskeag avenue in this city. Throughout their wedded life they will be followed by the most sincere wishes of their large circle of friends for their happiness and prosperity.

THE DRIVES. There was much discussion among all the lumbermen yesterday in regard to how much the rain storm would advance the different drives. From conversation with a number of those interested a WHIG reporter was enabled to obtain the following facts in regard to the different drives. The East Branch drive under the charge of E. W. Loveland will reach Medway this forenoon. The logs are coming along fast at present, there being about ten million in the drive which will reach the boom in ten days or less. The West Branch drive is under the charge of Capt. James L. Smart, of Milo, who has a crew of one hundred men at work. There are about twenty-five millions in the drive, which is expected in the lower lakes Friday or Saturday. The Wassataquoik drive and all of the logs under the charge of Irish and Love were at the mouth of the Piscataquis yesterday and will arrive in the boom to-day. These logs are closely followed by the third Mattawamkeag drive. The rise of the water has given every log on the Penobscot waters a great start and it is expected that logs which were lying up will arrive in the boom all right. Mr. Walter F. Palmer, who has charge of the boom, estimated yesterday that there would be forty millions of lumber driven in there within twenty-four hours. The lumbermen are all pleased at the prospects.

National Educational Association

The National Educational Association will hold its annual meeting at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., from July 14th to 18th. It will be one of the most interesting educational meetings ever held in this country and it is very desirous to have Maine well represented. Mr. G. A. Robinson, of Augusta, manager for Maine, has made arrangements with the Maine Central Railroad for one fare for the round trip to Portland. The fare from Portland over the Portland and Ogdensburg Railroad, via of Burlington and Lake Champlaine to Saratoga and return will be $10. The tickets are good for return until August 5th, thus giving the teachers an opportunity to visit the White Mountains and other places of interest on the route. The excursionists will go by steamer from Burlington to Fort Ticonderoga, a distance of seventy-five miles. He has also made arrangements with the Boston and Bangor Steamship Company for half fare from Bangor and intermediate landings to Boston, the fare from Boston being $7 50 for the round trip. Board at Saratoga can be obtained from $1 to $3 per day. The teachers of the State will never have a better opportunity to visit one of the most celebrated summer resorts in the country. Teachers wishing for circulars containing programme of the meeting, price of board, etc., can obtain them by writing to Mr. Robinson.

OBITUARY

Col. John Frank Godfrey

A dispatch received yesterday from San Francisco, by Mr. George F. Godfrey, conveyed briefly the sad intelligence of the sudden death at Los Angeles, Cal., on Monday evening, of his brother, Col. John Frank Godfrey. No particulars were received. Col. Godfrey was the second son of the late Judge John E. Godfrey, and was born in this city in 1839, and had just reached the age of forty-six when death overtook him. Early in the war Frank, as he was known among his acquaintances, enlisted in the First Maine Battery and received a lieutenant's commission, and with his battery went to New Orleans. While there he was detailed by General Butler to enlist a company of independent cavalry, which he did, and they were known as Godfrey's Cavalry and took part in the attack on Port Hudson and all other important engagements which took place in that vicinity for two years. He was afterwards promoted to be Lieutenant Colonel of the Second Maine Cavalry in which he served in all some three years.

After the war Col. Godfrey returned to this city where he read law with his father, was admitted to the bar, and entered upon a successful practice in which he continued until 1874, when he went to Los Angeles where he has been very successful in his profession.

Col. Godfrey was a fine scholar and had acquired much information through extensive travel, having traveled in Europe, and South America and in 1866 visited California overland before the construction of the railroad. Col. Godfrey leaves a wife, a Miss Helen Frost, daughter of Webster Frost, Esq., formerly of Bangor, and a son by a former wife, see Miss Abbie Bickett of this city. The intelligence of Col. Godfrey's death was a sad and unexpected blow to his friends and further particulars will be awaited with much interest.

Odd Fancies in Metal Work:

SOME OF THE RECENT WORK OF SKILLED ARTIFICERS

The Jewelry manufactories of Newark, which supply the markets of nearly half the country, have depended lately upon originality of style and the peculiarity of their goods for trade. The old successes which were achieved by driving trade through drummers have not been maintained and unless the manufacturer has some strong point which recommends his goods above those of others he has a hard struggle for existence. Odd things have been in demand and inventive skill has been at a premium. Some fanciful and highly attractive work is being done at present by one firm which does the manufacturing for one of the largest retail houses in New York. Etching has become popular in certain lines and some delicate work on silver attracted the special attention of a Tribune reporter during a recent visit to this establishment. A watch case for a curiosity with handle made beautifully enriched and cover made notably handsome. A few things are popular now. Letting a knife with silver blows and an adjustable spoon for holding the paper. The cover is etched in solid design, and during the idling hours of weary work each artificer with the faces of the dial and his guests already outlined on it, with the lines for illustration were equally fanciful, consisting only by a sketch of a bolt in a frame. Pleasure the whole scene being clearly and delightfully depicted.

Prayer books and Bibles are covered in another fashion. Heretofore the designs are of endless variety and include appropriate covers for wedding presents and holidays. The coin trade continues to demand the production of many designs. The actual coins are used, but one firm has consumed 2,000 trade dollars lately in making cuff buttons and various ornaments. Coins bearing the face of the coin. The cupid coins have taken on popularity, and the great diamond jewelry so remarkably popular.

Rich work on the fashion of ornamental metal in Newark is a considerable extent, and its revival after many years is in direct contrast with the manner in which popular taste attracts to old designs. Inlaid work is maintained a place in public estimation for a long time, and the variety of designs of which it is susceptible has recommended it respectably. The head of one firm is some of it in Europe several years ago, and Yankee like devised a means whereby the effect was produced by French workers could be put in at cheaply and rapidly by a new application of dies work, and has kept a large force busy with it ever since. The making of inlaid work on the jewelry must be done in New Jersey shops and the number of them seems to increase every year. Bridges for prize-winners are nearly every business made in that city, and much organ city has been shown in designs.

The setting of gems is a peculiar branch of work, which however, has presented few new features of late years. A novelty in silver fetch the effect of a process of electroplating with silver upon wood and its adaption to the use of all kinds of chasing umbrel [illegible] etc. The silver is the wood and the coating is so thin [illegible] garish the cost of each silver. The special designs in the variety of designs that can be produced.

CHAPTER I

THE GREAT EARTHQUAKE.

The city of Lisbon always beautiful was never more beautiful than on that fateful Tuesday, November 1, when the great earthquake came.

It seemed to the "saints with shows of gold and silver stars were full of sick, cursing pleasure seekers to and fro."

The day was ended with shining. Two men, twin lovers, the new marble quay just completed which was dearly popular for fashionables to gather of an afternoon and listen to the playing of the bands.

In the midst of this pleasure and pleasure [illegible] rumbling, rolling sound, the windows rattled, the ground shook, the [illegible] the faces of the dial were and his guests clearly outlined against the sky.
